2025 NEBBIOLO BIANCO

2025 VINTAGE

Winter was relatively normal, albeit with more rain than typical. As spring approached it started to turn dryer and hotter and the phenomenon continued into spring laying the foundation for a great flowering. The summer months and into harvest mirrored the spring experience with average daytime temperatures from January into harvest being much higher than the long-term average. Rain was also very low, and this combined effect of heat and dryness had grapes racing to ripeness and harvest started early. The lack of rain ensured fruit intensity.

ABOUT

Nebbiolo Bianco is a synonym for the white grape variety Arneis. It is not related directly to Nebbiolo but was planted alongside Nebbiolo in Piedmont to attract the birds away from the more prized red grapes. Hence it became known as Nebbiolo Bianco.

TASTING

This wine is crisp with aromas of green apple, pear and lemon.

PAIRING

Perfect accompaniment to a generous antipasti platter — just add friends!
